The Soldier's Dream.

[illegible]

Our bugles sang truce, for the night-cloud had lowered,
And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky;
And thousands had sunk on the ground overpowered—
The weary to sleep, and the wounded to die.

When reposing that night on my pallet of straw,
By the wolf-scaring faggot that guarded the slain,
At the dead of the night a sweet vision I saw,
And thrice ere the morning I dreamt it again.

Methought from the battle-field's dreadful array
Far, far I had roamed on a desolate track;
'Twas Autumn,—and sunshine arose on the way
To the home of my fathers, that welcomed me back.

I flew to the pleasant fields traversed so oft
In life's morning march, when my bosom was young;
I heard my own mountain-goats bleating aloft,
And knew the sweet strain that the corn-reapers sung.

Then pledged we the wine-cup, and fondly I swore
From my home and my weeping friends never to part;
My little ones kissed me a thousand times o'er,
And my wife sobbed aloud in her fulness of heart.

Stay, stay with us!—rest, thou art weary and worn!
And fain was their war-broken soldier to stay;
But sorrow returned with the dawning of morn,
And the voice in my dreaming ear melted away.

FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 24, 1862.

The Precious Metals.

The eastern commercial press regard with interest the continued development of mineral wealth of the Pacific States and Territories. In the falling off of the receipts of gold from California, the belief is entertained that the usual supply of gold will be made up from the recent discoveries in Washington and Oregon. The gold sent from California, in past years, has been necessary to meet the balance of trade against the country in its trade with England. The interruption of that trade—the fact that the balance of trade is in our favor—will have a tendency to keep the gold in the country, to make it more plenty, and to stimulate home industry. The trade indirectly of Oregon with the States must be, under the present state of things, essentially increased, and it ought to be made a direct trade. We shall require immense supplies for our miners, and they should be brought here without the expense of transhipment at San Francisco. It will add a needless and unnecessary cost to eastern goods designed to be sold in our market. We expect to see the commercial trade of Oregon greatly increased within the coming year.

An eastern exchange, in speaking of the supply of precious metals from the Pacific coast, makes the following very fair observations;

"For seven or eight years, California alone added fifty millions of dollars per annum to the world's supply of coined or bar gold; but her productiveness has considerably fallen off. The entire shipment Eastward from San Francisco in 1861 will scarcely reach forty millions; and this includes a considerable amount drawn from the new Territory of Nevada, (Carson Valley,) Oregon, and British Columbia. Of course, a portion of the product is retained in every gold-producing country, but we judge that the product of California in 1861 will fall considerably below forty millions of dollars.

Nevada has thus far produced considerably more silver than gold; yet she has veins of quartz at once rich in gold and exceedingly rich in silver, while her mineral region is rapidly expanding. The eastern base of the Sierra Nevadas appears to be rich in minerals, while the naked, barren ranges of mountains that skirt the valley of the detested Humboldt appear to be especially rich in silver. Probably future researches will trace veins of shining ore in the short, irregular, desolate ranges of low mountains that stretch thence through Utah and thus connect the mineral system of the Sierra Nevada with that of the Rocky Mountains.

This latter, by the way, appears to be yielding poorly this season. First the San Juan mines (in or near the upper edge of New Mexico) gave out; since then, we have heard poor accounts of the whole region watered by the tributaries of the South Platte, and regarding Denver as its emporium. We have not heard of a 'big strike' in that region for months, and have heard that very few of the miners therein are paying current expenses. If this be generally true, Gov. Gilpin of Colorado will have a lonesome post by the close of another summer.

In Oregon, the gold diggings are steadily extending, and it is now said that most of the region watered by the Columbia and its tributaries above the Cascade Mountains, will ultimately prove auriferous. We also hear vaguely of good diggings opened at either base of the Rocky Mountains, in the wild Indian country stretching from the South Pass northward to the British line.

Valuable mines, mainly of copper, but some of gold also, have recently been opened in Canada, while Nova Scotia is generally excited by stories that gold has been extensively discovered in her rugged hills. We cannot say how extensively the expectations thus excited are likely to be realized; but there can be no doubt that gold exists throughout a considerable area of this province—but whether in such abundance that it may be profitably and systematically worked, remains to be proved.

On the whole, while we doubt the discovery of another gold field at once so extensive and so rich as that of California, it seems clear that mankind need not suffer for lack of the precious metals, provided they are willing to obtain them by patient, resolute work."

In regard to our gold fields, we can very properly say that discoveries of gold, in sufficient amounts to pay well for working, have been made over a large extent of country. Some of these are of great richness, exceeding those found in the palmiest days of the California mines. Whatever opinion may be held of our gold discoveries in the Eastern States, it is certain that here, where we have knowledge of them, we are entirely satisfied of their great extent and value, and the certainty that their development is to have an important influence on the financial and commercial business, not only of Oregon, but of the Eastern States.

Report of the Secretary of War.

Secretary Cameron's report is shorter than Mr. Seward's—indeed, as printed in the New York papers, some very interesting passages were struck out at the last moment by an order from the War Department. They were printed nevertheless, though not as a part of the report. As might be guessed they embody the Secretary's views on the question of slavery in those portions of the country that our armies visit.

In his statement of the strength of the army, California is set down as having 4,658 volunteers. The only States that have contributed less, where they have contributed at all, are Delaware 2,775, and Minnesota 4,160.

The several arms of the service are estimated as follows:

	Volunteers	Regulars.	Aggregate.
Infantry	557,208	11,175	568,383
Cavalry	54,654	4,744	59,398
Artillery	20,380	4,308	24,688
Rifles & Sharpshooters	8,395	....	8,395
Engineers	....	107	107
Total	640,637	20,334	660,971

The appropriations asked for the service for the next fiscal year are computed for a force of 500,000 men. At the commencement of "the rebellion" (that is Mr. Cameron's term) the entire military force at the disposal of the Government was 16,000 regulars, mostly stationed at the West. During the Revolution, Massachusetts, with a population of 350,000, had at one time 56,000 troops in the field—a force greatly exceeding the whole number of troops furnished by all the Southern States during that war. "If," says the Secretary, "the present loyal States furnish troops in like proportion, which undoubtedly would be the case should any emergency demand it, the Government could promptly put into the field an army of over three millions."

In commenting on the gigantic character of the conspiracy against the Government, he says it extended over an area of 733,144 square miles, possessing a coast line of 3,523 miles, and a shore line of 25,414 miles, with an interior boundary line of 7,031 miles in length. It stripped us of arms and munitions, and scattered our navy to the most distant quarters of the globe. Seven months were not too long to prepare to retrieve all our losses and "restore the Union." Bull Run was the natural consequence of a premature advance of our brave but undisciplined troops in response to the impatience of the country. Its check "postponed the campaign a few months." The other successes of the rebels were "mere affairs, with no important advantages."

The Springfield armory was expected to turn out 10,000 muskets during December—it will produce 200,000 stand of Springfield rifles during 1862. The Government should never have less than a million of muskets in its arsenals, with a corresponding proportion of arms and equipments for artillery and cavalry. He recommends the establishment of a national foundry. West Point should have 500 cadets in it instead of 192 as now. Our exposed frontier should be placed at once in perfectly defensible condition. The Sanitary Commission has done a noble work for the army. Volunteers and regulars should be put on the same footing—merit alone should advance a man. A "regular" officer should not rank (as now) a volunteer officer of older commission. Consolidate regulars and volunteers now, while the war lasts, and so constitute a grand army for the Union.

The number of Aids to a Major-General ought to be limited—a dig at Fremont. The regimental Bands should be reduced in number, they cost more than their music is worth. Additional railroad connections between Washington, Baltimore and Alexandria should be furnished. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, where destroyed by the rebels, should be rebuilt. Eight hundred and seventy-five miles of telegraph line have been put in operation by the Department, and more is in progress. The boundaries of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia should be reconstructed, for the better protection of the Capital. He says:

The limits of Virginia might be so altered as to make her boundaries consist of the Blue Ridge on the east and Pensylvania on the north, leaving those on the south and west as at present. By this arrangement two counties of Maryland (Alleghany and Washington) would be transferred to the jurisdiction of Virginia which lies between the Blue Ridge and the Chesapeake Bay could then be added to Maryland, while that portion of the peninsula between the waters of the Chesapeake and the Atlantic, now jointly held by Maryland and Virginia, could be incorporated into the State of Delaware. * * It would be necessary that Maryland should consent so to modify her Constitution as to limit the basis of her representation to her white population.

In the portions of the report which Mr. Cameron requested the New York papers to strike out after they were in type, he argues the folly of leaving untouched any species of rebel property. Jeff. Davis, while a Senator, boasted that if the contemplated rebellion came on, "Northern towns and cities would become the victims of rapine and military spoil," and the threat would be executed if it were possible. Reason, justice and self preservation forbid that our Government should hesitate to exercise all the powers of war to bring the rebellion to a speedy end. It is vain and idle to carry on the war or hope to maintain its existence without using all its force. Arming the slaves is an undoubted right; its policy must be determined by circumstances. But in whatever way the slave is used, once free he must never be restored to bondage. As to his final disposition Congress must decide. But Mr. Cameron's after-thought induced him to omit all this from his report.

"Stand by your Government."

Our secession neighbor has given the public to understand on what terms he and his party will stand by the national government. He says that he and his party will stand by it when it stands by the Constitution; but that as it does not stand by the Constitution, he and his party are against it. In all constitutional questions, the secession party are to be judges. These views present no new light on the policy or principles of the secession party. They don't like our government; they are against it; they wish to see it put down, and would shoulder their muskets and assist in doing this, if they dared. They drink toasts to Beauregard; shout for Davis and Beauregard as the glory of the land; and pray God to paralyze our national arms. If we do not thus fairly represent the aims, ends and principles, of the secesh party, it is because we cannot.

Mr. Hall went out as passenger in the George Henry, whaling ship, to the arctic seas, two years ago, with the intention of stopping with the Esquimaux, adopting their habits and modes of living, with the design of hunting through the country for the remains of Franklin. Hall was left at Cumberland Inlet, and told his friends not to be anxious for his safety if he did not return in five years. There has nothing been heard of him by the whalemen frequenting those seas, since 1860.

A Call to the Union Men of Benton County.

Union men of Lane county, the time has come for action, and your June election is but a few months distant. Vital interests are at stake. The true issue is Union, with all its blessings of peace, of law, of order; or Disunion, with its anarchy, its outrages and its blood.

We appeal to every loyal citizen, lay aside your old jealousies and come up to the primary election of the delegates to the county convention like brothers. Let us hear the voice of the people.

To Republicans we say, let your acts of devotion to your country not be surpassed by mere empty sounding words. Come up like the true Union men that you are, to the rescue.

To Democrats we say, show that the magnanimity with which you have come to the aid of the Administration, the Constitution and the Government is still as noble in its constancy as in its magnanimity.

Come one, come all! to your precincts and elect delegates to the county convention. The precinct elections to be held on Saturday, the 22d day of March, 1862, and the county convention on Saturday, the 29th day of March, 1862, at the Court House in Eugene City. The county convention to nominate the county ticket and elect delegates to the State Convention.

CITY.

SUICIDE BY DROWNING.—Michael Coyer, who had been living in a cabin on Mr Potter's farm about three miles below town, on the Willamette drowned himself on Wednesday last January 23d He borrowed an axe from Josiah Melvin, who lives in the neighborhood, proceeded to the river, cut a hole through the ice and jumped in. He was seen by Mr Melvin and Mr Miller standing on the ice earnestly looking down at the hole and immediately after jumped in, they were not near enough however, to prevent him No cause is assigned for committing the deed, but it is supposed that he was laboring under a temporary fit of insanity The body has not been recovered. Mr Coyer was from Franklin County Pennsylvania, and had been living in Oregon three years—part of the time at Milwaukie, was about thirty five years old five feet eight or nine inches in height, and weighed one hundred and sixty pounds It is thought that all the papers he had were on his person.

BREAKING UP OF THE ICE.—Yesterday about eleven o'clock in the forenoon, the ice which has spanned the Willamette river at this point for the last week, began to move with a crashing sound, in a solid mass Piles were torn up, and everything that offered resistance was swept on down The boom containing a large number of logs, belonging to Abrams & Co, was carried away, and with it all the logs. The steamer Vancouver which lay at Commercial Wharf, had her side and one of her wheels considerably injured, and but for the precaution of Capt Turnbull in mooring a flat-boat alongside, she would have probably been a total wreck The steamer Express was also injured, having five holes knocked into her and her wheel damaged. All the afternoon miniature icebergs filled the river Navigation is open again in the Willamette

CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES.—Another crowded house last night to hear the debate. Considerable sharpshooting passed between the disputants. As one of the gentleman will be absent from the city for a time, a cessation of hostilities was announced We presume that when he returns, the battle will commence again

RISE IN THE RIVER.—During the day yesterday, the river rose at the rate of three inches per hour

THE FERRY.—The ferry boat, Robt. Ladd, master, will again commence plying between East and West Portland, this morning.

HOW ONCE JEFF. DAVIS WOULD TREAT A REBELLION.—When the now President of the Southern Confederacy was Secretary of War to the United States, he wrote to Gen Persifer F Smith in relation to the Topeka legislature of Kansas

"The position of the insurgents is that of open rebellion against the laws and constitutional authorities, with such manifestations of a purpose to spread devastation over the land as no longer justifies further hesitation or indulgence Patriotism and humanity alike require that rebellion should be promptly crushed."

Davis was false in calling the movements of the people of Kansas for their own protection a rebellion, but he was right as to the way in which an actual rebellion should be treated, and the people of the United States are putting his declaration into effect upon himself.

The new Governor, Dawson, arrived at Salt Lake City early in December On the 9th the legislature of the Territory convened and the Governor transmitted to the two Houses his message—which covered some sixty sheets of letter paper Of course no one, not compelled to the drudgery, would read it. The Saints were generally in a prosperous condition, Brigham Young's thirty wives had less than thirty children

The British Duke of Argyle says that no government could acknowledge the right of secession It would be destructive to any government In Gen Lane's last speech in the Senate, he openly declared in favor of this doctrine

The Union party of Lane County are in the field with a notice for a Precinct and County Convention There as here, the Union Flag is the only flag—and "by that we shall conquer"

CROMWELL.—Oliver Cromwell at the age of forty three years, never saw two opposing forces Through the civil wars his powers began to grow He was never beaten Why was he never beaten? Historians have speculated upon it "I was a man," he said long after in Parliament, "who was suddenly lifted up from small duties to great ones I enlisted men that had the fear of God in them, and reverenced Him, and from that time I was never beaten"—Higginson

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice See advertisement

SEWING MACHINES

ARE UNEQUALLED BY ANY FOR

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION

—AND—

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE simple in its construction, and easily kept in order should make a TIGHT LOCK STITCH, alike on both sides of the material and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed

It should be able to use cotton thread, or silk, directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin with rapidity and without changing the tension It should also be able to make the tension greater or less, on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity, and should have a straight needle curved ones being liable to break

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with hemmer, should stitch, fell run and gather, and always ready to work

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work and of using different colored thread or silk above or below to correspond with any two colors of cloth to be united

It should be able to make a long or short stitch and to fasten off the seam and commence sewing tightly at the first stitch and to run easily and make but little noise

It should have a wheel feed; no others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order, neither should it require a screw driver or wrench to set the needle

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress

It should not form a ridge on the under side nor ravel.

And Nine-Pins set, like systems, up
To be knocked down the following minute.
We've Kaleidscopes, of fancy make,
Like sinners old, or politicians,
That turn about with every shake,
In hopes to better their condition
Tetotums we've for patriots got,
Who court the mob with antics humble,
Like theirs the patriot's dizzy lot,
A glorious spin and then a tumble.

PICTURES ARE THE BEST IN OREGON.

How I Came to Get Married.

It may be funny, but I've done it. I've got a rib and a boy. Shadows departed—oysters stewed, brandy cocktails, cigar boxes, bootjacks, absconding shirt buttons, whist and dominoes. Shadows present—hoop skirts, band boxes, ribbons, gaiters, [illegible] stockings, juvenile dresses, [illegible] willow chaise, cradles, bibs, pap, sugar teats, paragoric, hive syrup, rhubarb, castor oil, Godfrey's cordials, soothing syrup, senna, salts, squills and doctor bills. Shadows future—more nine pound babies, more hive syrup, etc., etc.

I'll just tell you how I got caught. I was always the darndest [illegible] fellow you ever did see. [illegible] my line to be taken with the shakes [illegible] I saw a pretty girl [illegible] I'd cross the street any time rather than [illegible] Twas no [illegible] through a knot hole [illegible] long enough. Well, my [illegible] party one night and I [illegible] home because I wasn't [illegible] music. I hung around the house with [illegible] "Old Dan Tucker" [illegible] warm, watching the [illegible] down behind the window curtains and wishing the thundering [illegible] I could get to my room. I smoked [illegible] of cigars, and [illegible] was getting [illegible] mighty uncomfortable [illegible] up the door post. No sooner said than done, and I soon found myself snug in bed. "Now," said I, "let her rip! Dance till your wind gives out!" And cuddling under the quilts, Morpheus grabbed me. I was dreaming of soft shell crabs and stewed tripe, and was having a good time, when somebody knocked at the door and woke me up. Rap again. I laid low. Rap, rap, rap! Then Lib sings out "Jack, are you there?" "Yes," says I. Then came a roar of laughter. "Let us in," says she. "I won't," says I, "can't you let a fellow alone?" "Are you a-bed?" says she. "I am," says I. Then came another laugh. By thunder! I began to get riled.

"Get out, you petticoated scare crow," cried I, "can't you get a beau without hauling a fellow out of bed? I won't go home with you—I won't, so you may clear out." And throwing a boot at the door I felt better. But presently—oh! mortal buttons! I heard a still small voice very much like sister Lib's, and it said: "Jack, you'll have to get up, for all the girls' things are in there!" Oh! Lord! what a pickle! Think of me in bed, all covered with shawls, muffs, bonnets and cloaks, and twenty girls outside the door waiting to get in! If I had stopped to think I would have pancaked on the spot. As it was, I rolled out among the bonnets, wire and ribbons in a hurry. Smash went the [illegible] ery in every direction. I had to dress in the dark, for there was a crack in the door, and girls will peep—and the way I tumbled about was a death to straw hats.

The critical moment came. I opened the door and found myself right among the women. "Oh, my leghorn!" cried one. "My dear, darling winter velvet!" cried another, and they pitched in—they pulled me this way and that, boxed my ears, and one bright eyed little piece, Sal [illegible] was—put her arms around my neck and kissed me right on my lips. Human nature couldn't stand that, and I gave her as good as she sent. It was the first time that I ever got a taste, and it was powerful good. I believe I could have kissed that girl from Julius Cæsar to the 4th of July.

"Jack," said she, "will you see me home?" "Yes," said I, "I will." I did do it, and had another smack at the gate, too. After that we took a kinder turtle doving after each other, both of us sighing like a barrel of new cider when we were away from each other. 'Twas at the close of a glorious summer day, we were down in the orchard, sitting together on a log, my arms around Sal's waist, she was toying with my auburn locks of jet black hue; she was almost gone, and I was ditto. She looked like a grasshopper dying with the hickups, and I felt like a mud turtle choked with a codfish ball.

"Sal," says I, in a voice musical as the notes of a dying swan, "will you have me?" She turned her eyes heavenward, clasped me by the hand, had an attack of the heavens and blind staggers, and with a sigh that drew her shoe strings clear out, and then squatted in my lap; she corkscrewed and I [illegible] muxed and rolled back in it. I hugged her until I broke my suspenders, and her breath smelt of onions she had eat the week before. Well, to make a long story short, she set the day, we practised for four weeks every night how we would walk into the room to get married, till we got so we could walk as graceful as a couple of Muscovie ducks.

The night, the company, and the minister came; the signal was given, and arm in arm we marched through the crowded hall. We were just entering the parlor door, when down I went kerslap on the oil cloth, pulling Sal after me. Some cuss had dropped a banana skin on the floor, and floored me. I split an awful hole in my cassimeres, right under my dress coat tail. It was too late to back out, so clapping my hand over it we marched in and were spliced, and taking a seat I watched the kissing the bride operation. My groomsman was tight, and he kissed her until I jumped up to take a slice, when, oh, horror! a little six year old imp had crawled behind me, and pulled my shirt through the hole in my pants, had pinned it to the chair, and in jumping up I displayed to the admiring gaze of the astonished multitude, a trifle more white muslin than suited my ideas of good taste and I retired as soon as possible, when all my troubles, for the time, ended.

There is some talk in Congress of repealing the law by which sutlers are attached to bodies of troops.

Remarkable Instance of Medical Relief.

Below we publish [illegible] of those of the sufferers from the pangs of disease who have been restored their [illegible] health and [illegible] their cases and remedial [illegible] are authenticated by a Notary Public. The demands of society imperiously command that [illegible] and we commend them to the attention of the afflicted.

Certificate.—The undersigned [illegible] be similarly afflicted, where a permanent relief of their sufferings may be obtained, feels it his duty to thus publicly express his most sincere gratitude to Dr. L. J. Czapkay for the permanent recovery of his health. Broken down by the distressing symptoms incident to the vicious practices of uncontrollable passion in youth, depressed in body and mind, unable to perform even the most trifling duty imposed upon the ordinary avocations of life, I sought the advice of many physicians, who at first regarded my disease as of trifling importance—but alas! after a few weeks and in several instances months of their treatment I found to my unutterable horror that instead of relief my symptoms became more alarming [illegible] and being told by one that my disease being principally confined to the brain, medicine would be of little consequence, I despaired of ever regaining my health, strength and energy, and as a last resort, and with but a faint hope, called upon Dr. Czapkay, who, after examining my case, prescribed some medicine which almost instantly relieved me of the dull pain and dizziness in my head. Encouraged by the result, I resolved to place myself immediately under his care, and by a strict obedience to all his directions and advice, my head became clear, and my ideas collected, the constant pain in my back and groins, the weakness of my limbs, the nervous reaction of my whole body on the slightest alarm or excitement, the misanthropy and evil forebodings, the self-distrust and want of confidence [illegible] the incapability to study and want of resolution, the frightful exciting and at times pleasurable dreams at night [illegible] involuntary discharges, have all disappeared, and in fact, in two months after having consulted the Doctor, I feel as if inspired with a new life—that life which but a short time ago I contemplated to end by my own hand. With the view to guard the unfortunate from falling into the hands of unskillful quacks, I deem it my duty to recommend [illegible] the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay, and recommend him to all who may stand in need of medical advice, being convinced by my own experience that under his care a speedy and permanent cure will be effected.

MARYSVILLE, June 30, 1855.

DR. L. J. CZAPKAY, San Francisco—Sir: I have used the last of your medicine and do not think I shall need any more, as I feel very well, except that I have not entirely got my strength yet, but soon will with the appetite I have. It is [illegible] weeks since I called at your institute with no expectation, as I thought, broken [illegible] and never thought you would be able to cure me [illegible] able to do something [illegible] back and head and strengthen my nerves [illegible] excited and tremble at every [illegible] what I expected, you may judge of my satisfaction at my complete recovery from those [illegible] sores and blotches from my skin and [illegible] from my throat and the entire stoppage [illegible] which you said were principally the cause [illegible] which is the greatest [illegible] my surprise [illegible] not having fully [illegible] any man can feel.

Enclosed find [illegible] twenty dollars over your charge, and thank you [illegible] If you think anybody will be benefit [illegible] put this letter in the newspapers. Believe me gratefully yours,

THOMAS HAYDEN.

Thankfulness is the incentive to gratitude.

CERTIFICATE.—[illegible] the honest desire of my heart, I wish to lay before the public a case which deserves a commendation [illegible] of science in skill but that of humanity [illegible] About two years ago I suddenly, and from causes unknown [illegible] was seized with a fit of epilepsy, which [illegible] inability to meet the expenses consequent [illegible] medical treatment and the discouragement [illegible] attempting it soon became [illegible] to defy the skill of any physician. I was frequently while in pursuit of my calling, [illegible] to the ground without the slightest warning [illegible] agonies I yet despised the [illegible] look upon those who [illegible] shelter me from danger as enemies [illegible] prolong the existence of my miseries. While in this [illegible] having [illegible] to my afflictions tasted the sweets [illegible] was induced to attempt seeking [illegible] physician, and by recommendation, called upon Dr. L. J. Czapkay. I told him of my circumstances, and [illegible] his services, regardless of which he at once undertook my case, and with the blessing of God I was once more restored to perfect health. [illegible] for the boon which I enjoy at present [illegible] I consider it due [illegible] to make the case public, in order that [illegible] may find a physician [illegible] placed.
